Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Spring, for a certainty has arrived.

True leaves are appearing right and left. The Black Gum has big buds which are literally bursting into full flower. The Hickory Nut trees have enormous buds which glow in the early morning and late evening with an almost fluorescent light.

The Redwood has sent out green feathery spikes to explore the warm Spring atmosphere, and the Tiger Lily has budded out of the earth a foot into the air already. The Blue Bell is in full flower with the green fronds a foot and one-half long with the Blue Bells themselves easily visible from the breakfast room window.

Sitting there looking out the window one can see the cabbage like plants that come up in the woods each year, and the May Apples already six or eight inches above the ground.

We know Summer is coming because a Moth of some kind zigzagged lazily across the yard, and a big Mosquito buzzed across the face of the window.

The dark red Azalea that Mrs. Dick gave us last year is filled with buds and the white ones we got from Edgar are too.

"Communism is a threat that always seemed more myth than reality to me: for if it fails, it degenerates into anarchism, and if it succeeds, it becomes more and more like capitalism." Sydney Harris.

William Feather writes that "Fools rush in where fools have been before."

Good ad line, "Next time an Imperial representative tries to sell you type metal, be tough on him." The ad goes on to say that you should make the representative prove his point that this product is better than the competing products. This is in an ad by Imperial Type Metal.

We wonder if the Lord approves of all the things that are being done in his name.

We were amused by the preacher in Memphis who headed a delegation calling on Mayor Loeb. He reminded Mayor Loeb that there are laws higher than those of man, a statement which only a fool would deny. The only issue there in Memphis was whether the city was going to deduct the union dues from the paychecks of the garbage workers or not.

Caesar had his Ideas of March and we all have our Ideas of April. Next Tuesday is the day of reckoning with the Department of Internal Revenue.

An opportunist is defined as a person who, on finding himself in hot water, decides to take a bath. This comes from the Fulton Daily Leader.

The American Legion magazine carries this by Thomas Uek: "Moderation is fine, unless you carry the virtue to excess."

We were shocked the other night to hear a collegial program and of all things they had dug back to World War II and resurrected "String of Pearls." Maybe music is coming back after all.

GRASS FIRE

The Murray Fire Department answered a call yesterday afternoon to a grass fire on Loch Lomond Drive, according to the local firemen.

Griffin of Murray led the infantrymen of the 4th Battalion, 31st Infantry Company, which found and destroyed 27 122mm rockets along with 1,300 rounds of 127mm ammunition northwest of Tam Ky in Vietnam, according to the news release in the U.S. Army's daily summary of April 8.

The battalion led by First Lt. Griffin is a part of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade of the Americal Division stationed in their area of Operation Wheeler/Wallowa northwest of Tam Ky in Vietnam, as reported in the release for the office of information, United States Military Assistance Command, Vietnam.

BULLETIN

TOKYO 8P6 — The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry in an official statement accused the United States today of intentionally delaying talks between the two countries.

A similar charge was made earlier in the official Communist newspaper Nhan Dan which said the United States rejected proposed peace meeting sites because it "does not want talks to begin promptly."

Hanoi Radio followed up this by broadcasting a Foreign Ministry statement which warned that the United States must "stop creating problems" if it wishes to hold peace talks.

Dr. Read Will Represent Faculty On Regent Board

Dr. W. G. Read, professor and chairman of the physics department at Murray State University, has been chosen to represent the university's faculty on the MSU Board of Regents.

He narrowly defeated Robert Hendon, associate professor of agriculture, in a run-off election in which 81 per cent of the eligible faculty voted.

The election was held in accordance with a law approved earlier this year by the Kentucky legislature.

The law provides that both the faculty and the student body of state universities and colleges will have non-voting representation on the governing boards of the respective institutions.

Spencer Solomon of Benton, Ky., recently elected president of the student body, will be the student representative on the MSU board.

Dr. Read joined the Murray faculty in 1949, shortly after receiving his Ph. D. at the University of Kansas. He received his master's and bachelor's degrees at Ft. Hayes State College in Kansas and later taught there for one year.

A member of numerous professional societies, Dr. Read is listed in American Men of Science and Who's Who in American Education. He is an active promoter of physics education throughout the state.

Dr. Read and his wife, Maxine Anne Read, live at 1620 Sunset Drive in Murray.

CORRECTION

In the story concerning the meeting of the Calloway County Democratic Women's Club in Friday's issue of the Ledger & Times, it is that Sen. Carroll Hubbard had said the sixty day waiting period for divorce cases will start June 13. This should have been that starting June 13 farm machinery will be exempt from the sales tax, according to Sen. Hubbard.

Farm Sale Ad Of 100 Years Ago Was Interesting Reading

Some ideas of the equipment and supplies used by farmers 99 years ago may be gained from reading this sale bill from a Tennessee newspaper, offering a Kentucky farmer's property at auction before leaving the state:

"Having sold my farm and I am leaving for Oregon Territory by ox teams, will offer, March 1, 1869, all of my personal property, to-wit:

"All ox teams except two teams, Buck and Ben and Tom and Jerry; 2 milk cows; 1 gray mare and colt; 1 pair of oxen and yoke; 1 baby yoke; 2 ox carts; 1 iron foot of poplar weather boards plow with wood mold board; 800 to 1,000 three-foot clap boards; 1,500 ten-foot fence rails; 1 sixty-gallon soap kettle; 85 sugar troughs, made of white ash timber; 10 gallons of maple syrup; 2 spinning wheels; 30 pounds of mutton tallow; 1 large loom made by Jerry Wilson; 300 poles; 100 split hoops; 100 empty barrels; 1 thirty-two gallon barrel of Johnson Miller whiskey, seven years old; 20 gallons of apple brandy; 1 forty gallon copper still of oak tanned leather; 1 doz. real books; 2 handle hooks; 2 sythes and cradles; 1 dozen wooden pitchforks; one-half interest in tanyard; 1 thirty two caliber rifle, bullet mold and powder horn, rifle made by Ben Miller; 60 gallons of soft soap; hams, bacon and lard; 40 gallons of sorghum molasses; 6 head of fox hounds, all soft mouthed except one.

"At the same time I will sell my six Negro slaves, 2 men, 35 and 50 years old; 2 boys, 12 and 18 years old, 2 mulatto wenches, 40 and 30 years old. Will sell all together to same party, as will not separate them.

"Terms of sale, cash in hand, or note to draw 4 per cent interest, with Bob McConnell as surety.

"My home is 2 miles south of Versailles, Kentucky, on the McCoups ferry pike. Sale begins at 8 o'clock a.m. Plenty to drink and eat."

This item was brought in by Lomon McDougal of Murray Route Six which he had found in some of his grandmother's old papers.

Two Arrested In Theft Of Five Guns

Two persons have been arrested in connection with the theft of guns from the Murray Home and Auto Store Thursday night, according to Murray Chief of Police Brent Manning.

The men, one from Owensboro and one from Louisville, students at Murray State University, were arrested by Chief Manning, Sgt. Martin Wells of the Police Department, and Calloway County Deputy Sheriff Hardy Kelso after the officers had made a search of their apartment with a search warrant.

Chief Manning said five guns matching the serial numbers of those allegedly stolen from the Murray Home and Auto Store were found in the apartment of the two young men, whose names are being withheld by the police until further investigation is made.

Three other guns are still to be found that were taken from the store in the break-in that occurred when the glass in the front door of the store was broken and entry gained. The theft was discovered at 6:03 Friday morning.

The two men were arrested and placed in jail until the arrival of their parents who made bond of $1,500 for each day they were released to await the action of the Calloway County Grand Jury.

Local law enforcement officers are continuing in the investigation, Chief Manning said.

Melinda Yeager Back Home After Job Corps Stint

Melinda Yeager of Murray Route 5 has returned home after spending 17 months in the Women's Job Corps. She graduated on April 6.

Miss Yeager is the only girl screened by the Women in Community Service in Paducah who has completed this much Job Corps training.

A WICS spokesman said the 18-year-old girl had difficulty in adjusting to school and also needed better jobs than baby-sitting. She was accepted by the Job Corps and went to a center at Poland, Maine, in July, 1966.

She completed 600 hours of work in a veterinary assistant course plus 488 hours of experience in the Angell Memorial Hospital in Boston, Mass., where she was in the Job Corps at the YWCA in Cambridge, Mass.

While Miss Yeager served in the Job Corps, she saved the spending money allowed her and never had to write home for money. In addition to being trained for a productive job, Miss Yeager has a sum of money saved for her from her allowance and, as a bonus, two German Shepherd puppies, which the Animal Hospital in Boston allowed her to have.

"It is not the failure of Job Corps training when girls drop out," Miss Yeager commented when she was asked if she would recommend the corps to other girls. "If a girl fails, it is her own fault. It is up to a girl to do her best." She was emphatic that it is a girl's own responsibility to "make a go of it" and that a girl not in school or not trained for a job can benefit from Job Corps training.

Melinda's twin sister, Belinda, also has gone to Poland Springs and will complete her training as a cook in July.

Any girl interested in the Women's Job Corps may call a WICS volunteer.

The Paducah WICS members Mrs. John Kirksey, 442-2265; Mrs. Allen Senter, 443-5120, and Mrs. H. J. Simpson, 443-6147. Girls also can talk to the social welfare workers in their local communities about Job Corps training.

NIXSON HECKLED—During a news conference (right), former Vice President Richard Nixon was heckled by an unidentified man who was arrested by Cook County Sheriff Joseph Wooda (left) after a scuffle.

DRIVER THROWN CLEAR—An employee of the Northern Illinois Gas Co., Leo Namaro, Round Lake, Ill., was injured when he was thrown clear of his utility truck, crushed by a Milwaukee Railroad train three miles south of Richmond, Ill.

Son Risks Marriage to His Half-Sister

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a 24-year-old son who is engaged to the girl next door. We have lived as neighbors to these people for over 20 years and have always been very friendly. My problem is known only to the lady next door.

You see, I am the father of her daughter, which puts my son in the position of marrying his half sister. The lady next door refuses to tell her daughter, and insists it is my place to tell our son. If I do, he will tell his mother, who is sure to raise Cain, although she herself has left the trail a couple of times that I know of early in our marriage. Hurry your advice, as time is running out.

STUMPED: Tell your wife and be prepared for whatever follows. She might solve your problem by telling you that the boy is not YOUR son.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for a year and a half and I guess before another six months I will be pregnant. Not because I want a baby, but I am made to feel that it is my "duty" — and to keep putting it off just shows my "selfishness."

All I hear from my friends and relatives is, "Aren't you pregnant yet?" And my mother-in-law acts like I have been married and childless for 20 years.

Abby, the plain truth is that I am not ready to have a baby. It is so awful of me to enjoy my freedom? To be perfectly honest about it, I would like to wait about 5 years before having my family. Once a baby comes, you are tied down and your life is never the same. Oh, I know there are many blessings, but there are lots of worries and headaches, and I am in no hurry for them.

Some of our friends who have had families right away seem so tired and irritable, and other as well as they used to.

What do you think?

NOT READY

DEAR ABBY: Don't worry about what others say. You have to answer only to your husband and your own conscience. Until and unless your attitudes change, and you can think of good reasons for wanting a child, remain childless. If you have a baby because you fear criticism, I feel sorry for the child.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from George the bus driver caught my eye, because I am also a bus driver. And to add to the coincidence, my name is also George.

Where are all those lovely flirtatious ladies like to get the seat directly behind the bus driver so they can whisper sweet things in his ear, press their telephone numbers into his palm, and coquettishly blow on his neck?

I've been a bus driver for 8 years and I have never had that kind of luck. Our uniforms are good looking, and I wear mine with pride. But it seems that the person who invariably occupies the seat directly behind me is one who has just consumed a hearty meal, well-seasoned with garlic, washed down with cheap wine.

Could I be driving in the wrong city?

Scout News

Troop 45, Murray, Kentucky again lives up to their reputation, as being all weather campers, as they take off in the "Land Between-the-Lakes" Area. The troop camped and took part in activities designed to help the program for the Conservation of Natural Resources and Wildlife by taking to the field during the record snowfall of last month. The troop cleaned and restocked deer shelters, bird and other wildlife eating places, drained areas where water was adversely affecting wildlife and studied the actions of wildlife and nature when the area was covered with deep snow. This training will help them to plan and carry out projects within the field of conservation during the summer and fall months. All members were active in the use of an axe and qualified for their "Paul Buny an Award."

The Guns of Judgment Day

CHAPTER 30

SPACEDOWN seemed deserted as its makeshift walls and crooked chimneys drew close at hand. The only sign of life was Alex's drooping, lathered horse. If any of the inhabitants were at home, they stayed hidden. Not a face showed.

Dan dismounted and stood for a moment beside his mount, listening. The afternoon breeze brought the sound of boot heels crunching in hot soil. He was unable to locate the direction.

The flat-roofed structure, which bore the label of a store, was hidden from his view by a shaft. To his left, One Willit had said that Chad Shannon was being held captive there.

He heard Kathleen's horse arch. He glanced over his shoulder and waved a command for her to stay at a distance. She obeyed, halting her horse and dismounting.

Alex Emmons was sprawled face-down not far from the door of the store. His six-shooter lay on the hot earth beside him. He had been trying to fire it when he had fallen. The stain of blood seeped the earth beneath him.

Kathleen Royal came running into view. She screamed wildly, grievously, when she saw Alex's body.

"Stay back!" Dan Briscoe commanded. She obeyed, halting, then backing slowly to safer distance.

Dan crossed the open space between the two buildings, his eyes continuing to search for a target. He stepped over Alex's body and got his back to the wall of the store, a place from its door.

He doubted if the shots had come from this structure. He kept his eyes on the larger house and its windows where the green blinds flapped slowly in the gust of the hot wind.

The gabled house had been built as cheaply as possible. He doubted if there was plaster inside. Nothing but unfinished walls and ceilings came running floors. If killers were in the house, they must fire from the door or from the window above.

He believed Alex had been shot from the upper window, rather than from the kitchen door. Perhaps from both vantage points. Alex had walked into a trap!

A shadow moved at the window. He fired instantly with one gun. The bullet struck the wall, and dust and plaster showered over was inside with splinters.

A six-shooter flamed in the window, the report almost over- bracketed him. Guns were roaring in the window of the gabled house and in the kitchen door.

The door of the store was driven wide open by the stings of the Doubleday & Co. novel. Copyright © 1957, by Cliff Farrell. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

that assailed into its pained. He plunged flat on his face into the building and rolled aside, out of sight.

He waited for the pain and shock to pass. He could not believe it when he realized he had come unscathed through that nest of metal.

The dingy interior of the structure was lighted only by small, grimy windows. There were three walls. The doorway was the only opening in the front wall. Barrels and packing cases were spread in disorder. A plank counter, set on boxes, flanked the wall to the right. A few shelves held a scant collection of canned staples. Sacks containing sprouting potatoes, onions and turnips leaned drunkenly against a wall.

"Chad!" he called. "Chad Shannon!"

He waited, listening. He believed he heard faint, thumping sounds, but it might have been only the thud of his pulse. He moved on hands and knees along the plank floor.

The sound was real. It came from below! He expected the gunman to appear at the door, but they did not come. One Willit had said the child was being held in a root dug out, he searched around at the rear in the semi-gloom, and found the entrance. It was covered by a few planks and a blanket.

"Clearing the opening," he peered into a musty excavation. He could hear faint, gurgling sounds. He lowered himself into the opening, and found it less than his height. There he also found Chad Shannon.

The lad was gagged, his small wrists lashed behind him, and his ankles tied with leather thongs. Dan lifted him into the shabby light of the room.

"You're all right now," he whispered.

Dan worked the gag free, and, after some difficulty, managed to loosen the bonds that had been tied brutally tight.

Chad Shannon tried to talk, but failed. His small face was puffed and discolored. He was caked with dust and his hair was matted with dried blood. He had been beaten. His legs bore welts made by a quirt.

Dan began chafing circulation in the lad's arms and legs, hoping that his efforts were in time.

He shouted, "Kathleen! Circle around to the back of the store! Stay down so they can't shoot at you from the house. I've got the boy!"

He smashed the glass from the window at the rear. Kathleen soon appeared at the opening. "Here he is," Dan said, lifting the boy into her arms through the window.

She cuddled Chad Shannon in her arms. "You're safe now," darling," she choked.

Dan looked at the lad's bruises and emaciation. "Sane and Marko are forced up in the house," he said. "Don't let them get a shot at you. Take the boy to his grandmother."

He started to turn away from the window. "No!" Kathleen protested desperately. "The law will take care of this!"

"Like it took care of what's gone in the past?" Dan said harshly. "Look at that boy! Look at what they did to him! We can't take a chance on those two ever getting turned loose in the world again."

"Isn't Alex's death enough?" she sobbed. "Think of me! I can't lose you, too."

"You know I'm right," Dan said. "You know this has to be tried, that I just can't walk away from it. And you know how much I love you."

He left the window and moved to the door of the store, peering warily through the slit between the door and its frame. Alex's body lay motionless. The window and the door of the house seemed vacant.

"I'm coming after you, Sand!" he called. "And you, Marko. This is Dan Briscoe."

Such was the urge to pay them for what they had done to Chad Shannon. And to Laving Shannon and to Kathleen and all the others who had died or had been baited into hating their friends.

There was no answer. Dan leaped through the door, and ran, twisting and ducking, toward the house firing one gun as he moved. The upper window and the lower door belched gun flame. Bullets grazed him, plucked at his sleeves, plover spurts of dust around his boots. They had not expected his maneuver and had been startled into shooting frenziedly.

He survived and reached the rear wall of the kitchen an arm's length from the open door. He flattened there, hidden from the man in the upper room by the eaves of the lean-to.

He reloaded his six-shooter from the shells in the loops of the gambrel. Silence came. Then he could hear them moving stealthily in the creaky house, moving to better positions, no doubt.

Dry tumbleweeds grew against the walls of the structure, or had lodged there. He found his matches and touched them off. They burst into swift, crackling flame.

He raced along the side of the house to the front corner. The weeds might or might not ignite the house in their brief moment of lurid life.

(To Be Concluded Tomorrow)

Retired Persons Hold Meeting At Community Center

"Getting to Know You" was the theme of Tuesday's meeting of the Retired Persons Club. Singing and discussion of current national events was led by Leslie Putnam, Bryan Tolley, president, conducted the business. The next meeting will be Friday, April 19, at two o'clock in the Community House, Ellis Drive.

The purpose of this organization, according to Mrs. Tom Brown, chairman of the Murray Woman's Club, committee that sponsored the project, is to get the retired persons of the county together at regular times to become acquainted and participate in fun activities, similar to those in resort areas. It is the opinion of the Woman's Club leaders that there is a need here of such an organization.

The next meeting will be a "Bingo" party. White elephant items, wrapped, brought by each member, will be the prizes. Mrs. Norman Clapp, Mrs. Jewell Parks and Mrs. Lela Shackelford will be the hostesses.

In observation of National Library Week, Mrs. Ben Trevathan, librarian, has invited the club to meet in the public library for book review program and refreshments on April 26. Future meetings will be Fridays at two o'clock in the Community House. Programs include a shuffleboard tournament, card parties, a luncheon, forums, and hobby displays.
